INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM

A Disease for Which Ordinary Treatment Is Unsatisfactory.

Description of a Severe Case Which Was Rapidly Cured by the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The ordinary medical treatment of inflammatory rheumatism is still far from satisfactory. Most of those treatments are directed at the symptoms and are considered successful if they relieve the pain and stiffness. But the blood has not been purified and the rheumatism is sure to return, especially after a season of exposure to cold and dampness. For this reason sufferers from rheumatism will be interested in the success which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have had in curing this painful disease.

Francis H. Clarkson, of Annapolis, Md., was cured of a severe attack by this treatment. His case is described by his mother, Mrs. Arthur Clarkson, as follows:

"Two years ago this spring," she says, "my son, Francis, had a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism. After he had been under the care of a doctor for some time and had tried every remedy without getting relief, I was advised by a friend to give him Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"When he began taking the pills he had been sick for several months. His joints were badly swollen and pained him all over his body. His legs were so swollen and painful that he could not stand on them for three weeks. I had him give the pills a good trial, and he was entirely cured."

An attack of rheumatism is very difficult to cure so that it will recur. Ordinary treatment aims only to relieve the pain until the attack itself ends. Then it is liable to occur again and usually does, year after year.

If you have failed to find more than temporary relief from your suffering the treatment is most likely not a blood-purifier and you are, therefore, not treating the cause of your trouble. You should not neglect to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills but begin a course of treatment with them at once. A valuable booklet, "Disease of the Blood," containing more information about rheumatism and other diseases of the blood, will be sent free upon request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50 by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

BILL DONOVAN PICKS MACK'S MEN TO WIN THE WORLD'S SERIES

By BILL DONOVAN.

The noted Detroit pitcher, who has been on the mound in past world series, has picked Mack's men against the Athletics and Cubs.

I believe that the Athletics will win the world's baseball championship this year. There are the reasons which lead me to believe that the Philadelphia team to beat Chicago.

The Athletics are better batters. The Philadelphia pitchers stand in as good a line as the Chicago's.

If the Athletics infield does not become nervous or overcautious, they should be able to win the series. I believe the Athletics will play as well as they have been playing for the last few months.

They will be able to stand up before the batting series and in this they will have an advantage over the Cubs.

My only worry would be in regard to the infield. If Baker and Barker do not become a little more steady in the field, it will be a disadvantage to the Athletics.

KEEP YOUR NERVE. That is the best advice that could be handed to the Athletics. There is probably no situation in base ball more trying and more severe on the nerves of the players than a world series and unless the men who play in the game can keep their heads and maintain a coolness of mind, they are sure to be a failure.

If Baker and Barker can keep their nerve, the Athletics' infield should stand up as well as the infield of the Cubs.

Now let's look over the outfield. Conroy, Lammie, and Smith are good. Smith is a good outfielder. With the exception of Strunk these men are all veterans.

Smith is a good outfielder. He is not to be underestimated. Mack has assembled a good team. He has a good team, and above all, men who are sure to be a success.

Pitchers a Big Factor. That is one of the biggest essentials in winning ball games. Judging from the work of the pitchers, they will be a big factor in the series.

It was up to me to make the analysis in the series I think. I would depend on the work of the pitchers.

The first game holds much for each team. It is generally conceded that the team winning the opening contest has a 25 per cent. advantage in the remaining games.

"Play for the first game," the old adage is. "Play for the first game," the old adage is. "Play for the first game," the old adage is.

It is a good idea to play for the first game. It is a good idea to play for the first game. It is a good idea to play for the first game.

Hail To Columbus Day

Next Wednesday (Oct. 12) will inaugurate a new holiday in honor of Christopher Columbus. It is a long delayed, but highly-fitting recognition of this great man. In observance of this occasion, our store will remain closed all day. This is the last out-of-door holiday we have this year—and no matter what your dress requirements may be, they can be most advantageously attended to here. If a black suit should be needed for the parade, you'll find the greatest values here you ever saw in both cheviots and unfinished worsteds, ranging in price from $10 to $25. The same selections can be made in subdued mixtures or fancy pattern effects at same price.

So on down the list—gloves, hats, shoes, dresses, topcoats, furnishings, sweaters, waists—in fact, everything for men, women or child—you will find low prices linked with high quality waiting to greet you here. And back of every purchase you make, you have this satisfying assurance to rely upon, "Your money back if you want it."

Suit or Topcoat

That's Worth $15

You'll realize, when you come here to buy a suit or topcoat, that you get value that's greater than price—especially in these $15 values we're now selling at $10. You get it in the fabrics, in the fit and in the service that the garments will give you. They are practical, stylish, long-enduring suits and topcoats at a practical price. Whether $10 "will do" is a question you must decide—for we have plenty of other Suits and Topcoats From $7.50 to $25

Men's Sweaters

Long flannellette kimonos, in collarless effects, some in fancy crepe; light blue, tan, red, gray and pink trimmed, with collars in match—at price of 98c.

These $23 Suits

Look carefully at the cut and see if you don't see value in every line of the garments. There are broad cloths and worsteds, and the colorings run to blues, tans, greens, gray and plain blacks. The coats have linings of guaranteed gray satin and are made with selecting backs; the skirts are made in modified hobble effects, or plain front and back with pleated sides, or just the reverse of this.

Thin Hair

Is Not Necessary at All, and Unless Falling Is Stopped Will Result in Baldness

The man or woman who just lets the hair fall, get thin and gradually disappear will be sorry when baldness actually comes that such a sterling, dependable remedy as Lorrimer's Excelsior Hair Tonic was not used in time. Permitting enemies of healthy hair, such as dandruff, to sap the life of the hair, is sure to lead to more serious hair troubles and baldness. Do as Arthur W. Lorrimer of 159 Mt. Vernon Ave., Rochester, did.

Have sent me bottle of your Hair Tonic and I will send you a bottle of Lorrimer's Excelsior Hair Tonic at Riker-Jaynes' or your nearest druggist and prove its value to you. Get it today.

RACE WITH GEDDIE
George A. Giffenden has issued a challenge to Barney Giffed, world champion, to defend his title in a match race on the Madison track at the coming big race meeting on October 14. The Knox stock car with which he will race Jack Johnson, the heavyweight pugilist champion of the world, at the Garden of Eatin' track, New York, is also Cobs is still leading Lajoie in the race for the auto prize. The veteran batsman made a gain on Cobs yesterday by hitting out of four times up, but as Cobs made two hits out of four times at bat, his average is better than it was twenty-four hours ago.

According to revised figures Cobs now leads Lajoie by six points. These are the figures accepted by the Cleveland papers.

Each player figures in at two moments these seasons, so that it is taken care of by the umpire's work on Wednesday and Sunday for Cobs to enable the big Frenchman to win. Today's figures show Cobs' average is .326 and that of the Oysters are blamed for the Naps' failure to make any kind of a show in this year's race for the pennant. The Cleveland club, trained at Alexandria for several weeks, then went to New Orleans to remain there until a few days before the opening of the season. The players ate many oysters in Louisiana. All of them lost much weight and strength. The club blames this loss on the oysters and not the water. Oysters will be barred from the menu cards of the tables occupied by the Naps.

Some of the best amateur boxing action in this city in several years was held under the auspices of the St. Anthony's Association last night in its hall on South Street. Raymond Gilbert was the star of the show, a big crowd was present.

Two details were noted. Ned Hanvey, a well-known street fighter, did not fight a semi-final bout in the 125 pound class, a Brewer Thelon fighting in the 150 pound class to Joe Ferrero, the hard hitting Italian lightweight, who lost in the final bout to Ed Ryan, a Lynn in one of the best bouts of the night.

BROWN OCTOBER ALE—

So this is not an "Alice" ad. It is a "Gale" ad, and we need this ad because it is the only one that talks about Browns—the finest line of Brown Woolens that ever came into a tailor shop.

They run from very light browns to the very darkest of browns—in shades of forestals and in soft, unobtrusive tones—mixed and plain. They are made up in beautiful colorings in women goods. We mention Browns because they are very popular this season—probably because they are irascible to men of refined taste.

Any cloth, any color, any cut, any waist can be had here. The price for a suit (of overcoat) will be $15 to $25, and every coat is built with "The front-line, the break-down, the famous Gale & Kennedy pattern." Call and look over the goods in the goods-the-piece. The handsomest line in Boston, upon evenings.

The Story of a Studio Murder Mystery, from "The Veil of Clay," by Meta Simmins
(Rebroadcast in America by London Daily Mail, 1934)

"'Not one-by-one'" Her tone was vehement, but apparently the horror-stricken sincerity in her brother's voice and eyes had not been without its effect upon her. "But you have not answered my question—what were you doing with this thing here when you thought you were alone and unperceived? Why did you try to hide it from me?"

"Why?" she asked, with pretty offensiveness. "You startled me by your sudden appearance; you were the last person in the world I expected to see, and naturally when I saw you I hid it from you."

"You first intended to hide from me?"

"Your Dumbbell——!"

The woman said nothing. For an instant she regarded him with somber, hostile eyes. Then slowly she advanced to the table and took the dumbbell up in her slender hands.

As Jardine watched her he realized that in the brief space of time that had elapsed since he had last seen his sister some inexplicable change had come over her.

"Ah, With a sharp, sly cry of almost animal rage Constance flung it at him; the dumbbell dropped for her hand, crashing to the floor. "It is the same—I was not mistaken. You dimbled!—and the other lives in the hands of the police at River row! Your daughter!"

For a moment she paused as though gathering together the forces of her hatred against him, then broke out again:

"And the other lay close, close to the body of my poor Lewis in the water for three long, bloody weeks! Three weeks in the flats. In this flat with you—in the room upstairs; and you tell me he snuggled out into the street—into the river—broad daylight and was never seen again! Walked out—stabbed to death—with a really it makes very little difference to us

— as a matter of fact, I prefer it."
"Ah, my dear child, won't you give me your confidence?" he said placidly. "I want so much to help you, and how can I help you unless I know what has happened since I saw you — for it is plain enough I see that something has happened. You have had news."

"News The mounting lys-teria in her throat half strangled the word in its utterance. "I have," she said, "I have learned the truth."
"Oh, this God . . . whose mercy you soon
— listen to what . . . he has allowed to happen to me."

"The worst of heavenly rain

"I will not detain you many minutes," she said. "I have come merely to give you this," she said.

"She held out a little packet in her un-gloved hand. Constance took it with a mechanical politeness.

"This is our gift that, as you were to have married my boy, you should possess something that had been his," she said simply. "I wanted you to have something, but it was difficult to know what to give you. I have thought of it, and it ought to be something intimate."

"So I have

"Oh, I know you don't like me—I know you grudging me his love," she broke out impatiently. "And now perhaps I understand a little why . . . But because I loved him, too, differently, perhaps, but ever dearly—because of my love for him, may we not be friends?"

turned as he had seen it last—the face of the girl who had first seen in the yard of the police station at River Road. The girl who had loved a man called Jim, who had claimed the body of the dead Lewis Stevenson as that of her own—the girl who, numbed, had cast her violets into his open grave.

Perhaps in that moment Constance Knowles tasted all the bitterness that life and death can bring to a woman, certainly in that moment she felt that she was not that girl who had cried wrong from her by surprise, she uttered no word, gave no sign of the torture that racked her. Only once she raised her eyes from her lovely pattered face and shot him a single glance, a look that said she would never love again.
